Guest Speaker

Bernadette McGrath

Director, Survivors of Torture and Trauma Assistance and Rehabilitation Service

Bea is a social worker who provides leadership at the state and national level in the development of responses to the needs of those who have experienced torture and trauma. STTARS offers a range of services including individual and group counselling, community development activities and natural therapies. STTARS also plays an important role in advocating on behalf of its clients, particularly children.

In 2009 Bea managed the first six months of a national project to provide a torture and trauma support service to asylum seekers being held in detention on Christmas Island. The service was staffed by counsellors seconded on a rotating basis from all of the mainland torture/trauma services. The project achieved a great deal beyond simply providing support and advocacy to detainees. The inclusion of external agencies working from a human rights perspective within the detention system had a very positive effect in terms of promoting a much healthier detention environment.
