AASW TAS Branch Networking Group Meetings
2014

Continuing Professional Development—Policy, Record Keeping, SWOT

Glenys Wilkinson is the Chief Executive Officer with the Australian Association of Social Workers a position she has held since June 2012. Glenys holds undergraduate and Masters level qualifications in Social Work and a Master of Organisation Dynamics. She has more than 35 years experience as a social worker predominately working in executive management positions across a number of not for profit agencies in the community sector. Prior to joining the AASW Glenys held senior management positions with two community health organisations in outer metropolitan and a rural location. Glenys has also held senior management roles in child advocacy, child and family support and local government services. She describes herself as committed to social justice and addressing the structural disadvantages that exclude people from fully participating in our community and living their lives with dignity.

Do you have questions about your CPD requirements?

Are you up to date on the latest AASW policy for Continuing Professional Development for members?
What does being a CPD Accredited member mean? How many hours of CPD is enough? What are the three categories of CPD and what counts for each one?
What CPD is required if you are unemployed, on leave or working part time?
How to keep a log of your CPD activities and hours?
What online courses are available?
How to choose a quality program?
What to expect from an AASW endorsed course?

**********************************************************

Come along to AASW TAS Branch’s July Networking Group meetings in Hobart, Launceston and Burnie for the latest information and answers to these questions from Glenys Wilkinson AASW Chief Executive Officer.

- See a live demonstration of the SWOT online learning suite of courses for social workers.
- Hear about future planned developments in 2014 for online CPD for rural and remote social workers.
- Ask questions – Glenys and Branch Committee members will be happy to answer.

Register online: http://www.aasw.asn.au/events/category/tas

Further information/ RSVP:
Contact AASW Tas Branch Office
E: aaswtas@aasw.asn.au  T: 6224 5833